

Who are the Green Captains?

The Green Captains were formed in 2021 in response to the Theatre Green Book. Originally a group of students from various drama schools, the Green Captains are now extending into industry and apprenticeships as well as schools and colleges. Today's young people are the key to creating a greener future.

Our Aims

- To ensure young people are at the forefront of sustainable development in theatre
- To embed the Theatre Green Book and triple bottom line into education and industry
- To provide young people with desirable skills for employment
- To connect and support like-minded individuals

Why be a Green Captain?

- We have representatives on both the ABTT sustainability committee and the Theatre Green Book productions committee to ensure feedback and ideas are conveyed to industry.
- To upskill young people, preparing them for greener ways of working which are becoming more and more commonplace.
- To provide accreditation of their dedication to sustainable practices, making them stand out to employers.

Who can be a Green Captain?

Students (secondary school to university level), apprentices, early career professionals, members of youth drama groups etc.

What does being a Green Captain involve?

There are 2 parts to being a Green Captain - idea sharing and individual projects

Ideas sharing:

We are looking to set up Green Captains committees within organisations (with committees forming by location for those from smaller organisation). These committees will assign roles between them (chair, secretary, social media, etc) and decide how frequently to meet.

A representative(s) from each committee will be invited to the Green Captains General meetings.

Individual Projects:

The accreditation part of Green Captains comes in the form of individuals setting 3 targets (short term, mid term, long term) which they will complete and sign off with the help of their mentor. The completion of these three tasks will provide the individual with Green Captains certification.
